In King's Wood

A woman with long dark hair, wearing a brown long-sleeved top, is holding a piece of teal paper. She is looking at the paper with a focused expression. The background is a plain, light-colored wall. To the right, there is a large, curved, white structure with black cutouts, possibly a piece of art or a display case. The lighting is warm and directional, coming from the right, casting shadows on the wall and the structure.

A group of people are sitting on the ground in a wooded area, surrounded by fallen leaves. They are engaged in a craft project, creating a circular structure made of sticks and plants. The structure is composed of many thin, light-colored sticks arranged in a ring. In the center of the ring, there are several green and red plants, including what looks like a red geranium. One person in the foreground is using a pair of red-handled scissors to trim a plant. Another person in the background is also working on the structure. The ground is covered in brown leaves and soil. The overall scene suggests a community art or environmental project in a natural setting.
